

Challenging Behaviour & Dementia Train-the-Trainer Course

Overview

Dealing with people who exhibit challenging behaviour can be full of problems. Our healthcare sector train-the-trainer course helps with these problems by developing an understanding of the potential trigger points, improving communication skills, understanding more about dementia, person centred care and discusses de-escalation techniques and break-away plans.

Intended Audience

Trainers and managers in the healthcare sector such as; care homes, nursing homes, residential and respite homes, rehabilitation centres and learning difficulty centres. Also care in the community such as domiciliary agencies.

Course Details

The course, which runs over two days, consists of 5 main modules: understanding dementia, understanding difficult and challenging behaviours, Person centred care, communication, de-escalation and break-way plan. The train-the-trainer element runs throughout the course.

You can deliver this course direct to carers via two-three hour modules as discussed above.

Assessment

Assessment on this course is done by test paper as well as continuous assessment.

Course Material

The trainers pack is included which comprises a comprehensive trainer's manual which is written by trainers for trainers, delegate workbook, delegate booklet and tri-fold brochure. The course CD which includes the PowerPoint presentation that is used through the course and the delegate workbooks, handouts, test papers (with answers!), certificate masters etc.

Course Format

This is a two day course which starts on the first day with registration at 9:30am and is expected to finish around 4:30pm, with lunch and refreshments (included in the price of an open course). The course is run in small informal groups in a friendly atmosphere that promotes learning in an enjoyable way.

This course is also available in-house and direct to carer as any or all of the five modules mentioned, or as a single 3-4 hour "taster" session. Ask for details!

Suggested Follow Up

Depending upon the delegates experience and role there are a range of healthcare train-the-trainer courses that may be of interest such as; Health & Safety (a good one to have as it covers in greater depth the legal aspects and responsibilities, as well as spending more time on the trainer elements – excellent for staff new to the management or training roles).

Accreditation

This course is accredited by the UK accreditation body the Open College Network (OCN) at level 3 for the "train-the-trainer" element, and allows the trainer to issue accredited level 2 certificates to their trainees. Alternatively, the trainer can issue SpringBoard Safety Services certificates free of charge.

Extended Support

Following the course, if you have any queries, just ask!

Our support doesn't stop when you go out the door!
